Honored Students
Honored Faculty
Faculty Colleagues and Friends of the University

It is a pleasure to welcome you to the 86th University of Michigan Honors Convocation. On behalf of the academic leaders on the Ann Arbor, Dearborn, and Flint campuses, I thank you for joining us today.

The Honors Convocation is an important University tradition. It provides us with the opportunity to recognize and celebrate the outstanding academic achievements of undergraduate students from all three of our campuses.

Today we honor students whose achievements exemplify the University's commitment to academic excellence, committed leadership, and thoughtful service. These students have demonstrated a passion for learning – challenging themselves and their teachers with tough questions and innovative ideas that stretch the boundaries of knowledge and open new pathways for exploration.

The University's mission statement clearly states our commitment to “developing leaders who will challenge the present and enrich the future.” The students we honor today give life to that commitment through their purposeful engagement with the world.

Today we also honor a group of distinguished faculty members who have joined us for this ceremony. Recently recognized by the University for their outstanding teaching and scholarship, they represent the many individuals in our community who inspire, challenge, and support our students.

As we congratulate our students, we also want to recognize, with deep appreciation, the parents, family members, and friends who have nurtured and supported these remarkable young people. The University of Michigan shares the pride you feel in their accomplishments. With you, we look forward to the contributions they will make to the future.

Congratulations and Welcome!

ORDER OF EXERCISES

Honors Convocation, March 15, 2009

“Growth and Sustainability: Seeking Balance”

The speakers at today’s event will be examining the relationship between growth and sustainability as the University of Michigan’s academic community, our state, and the nation contemplate the challenges and opportunities offered by a dynamically changing world.

The University of Michigan wishes to thank Jill Rice and Christa Moran, American Sign Language Interpreters, for their important service during this program. In addition, a viewing area equipped with real-time captioning is designated on the main floor. Please ask a faculty marshal if you need assistance locating this area.

HONORS CONVOCATION SPEAKERS

Maia Dedrick

Senior, School of Music, Theatre & Dance

Maia Dedrick, who came to the University of Michigan from Maplewood, Minnesota, is a senior with a double major in music (cello performance) in the School of Music, Theatre & Dance, and in anthropology and classical archaeology in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts. She has engaged in numerous academic and professional activities, becoming the first undergraduate student to supervise the excavation of a project for the Programme for Belize Archaeological Project. Ms. Dedrick also interned for the Archaeobiology Program at the Smithsonian Institution, has worked as a laboratory assistant for the University Exhibit Museum of Natural History, and has taught classes on archaeology and nationalism to freshmen in the Honors Program. She is founder and president of the University of Michigan Archaeology Club. For outstanding performance in her coursework, she has earned the designation of Angell Scholar and has been named a Dean's Merit Scholar in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts. Additionally, she has been awarded many scholarships in recognition of her accomplishments, including a Rogel Award of Excellence Scholarship.

Ann Marie Sastry

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Mechanical Engineering

Professor of Biomedical Engineering

Professor of Materials Science and Engineering

Director of the Energy Systems Engineering Program

College of Engineering

Professor Sastry was named as a Thurnau Professor in 2008, in recognition of her excellence in and dedication to undergraduate education, particularly for her availability and responsiveness to students and her ability to be both demanding and supportive. All of her degrees are in mechanical engineering, with a bachelor of science from the University of Delaware, and a master of science and Ph.D. from Cornell University. In energy technologies, her laboratory has developed new materials, invented techniques for manufacture and optimization of batteries, and algorithms for optimization of power systems. The projects of her laboratory in the area of numerical simulation of performance of Li batteries for electric vehicles, creation of biological batteries, and other modeling of fully integrated structural batteries have been sponsored by General Motors, the Department of Energy, the Army Research Office, the Air Force Office of Scientific Research, the National Science Foundation, and the Ford Motor Company. Among her many honors, she has been presented with the University of Michigan Henry Russel Award (1999), the Presidential Early Career Award for Scientists and Engineers (National Science Foundation, 1997), and a University of Michigan Faculty Recognition Award (2005), acknowledging outstanding contributions as a senior faculty member in research, teaching, and service.

2008 CARNEGIE FOUNDATION FOR ADVANCEMENT OF TEACHING MICHIGAN PROFESSOR OF THE YEAR

Ralph Williams

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of English Language and Literature

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Characterized by his chair as “legendary for his passion and prowess in the classroom,” Professor Williams has been a Thurnau Professor for many years. We acknowledge him today for having been selected as the 2008 Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching Michigan Professor of the Year. Founded in 1981 and administered by Carnegie and the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education, the U.S. Professors of the Year award celebrates the most outstanding undergraduate teachers in the nation. Professor Williams specializes in Medieval and Renaissance literature, Shakespeare, literary theory, comparative literature, and Biblical studies. His courses cover many topics, such as the Bible in English, the literature of Chaucer to Frederick Douglass, to the works of Primo Levi and the memory of Auschwitz. A colleague says, “Generations of students have found a love and respect for literature and for the humanities through their coursework with him.” He was also instrumental in forging a partnership between U-M, the University Musical Society, and the Royal Shakespeare Company to bring memorable productions and lectures to campus during three residency programs. He has been at U-M since 1970 and plans to retire at the end of this term.

RHODES, MARSHALL, AND MITCHELL SCHOLARSHIPS

Rhodes Scholarships and Marshall Scholarships are among the world's most prestigious academic awards for graduate students. Since the estate of British philanthropist Cecil J. Rhodes established Rhodes Scholarships in 1904, twenty-five University of Michigan alumni have studied as Rhodes Scholars at Oxford University. Thirty-two Americans are named Rhodes Scholars each year. International students may apply to or be nominated by eighteen other jurisdictions designated by the Rhodes Trust. Students are nominated and appointed based on literary and scholastic attainments, integrity of character, leadership, interest in and respect for other human beings, energy to use talents to the fullest, and a fondness for and success in sports. Abdul El-Sayed, a 2007 LSA graduate, will be Michigan's twenty-sixth Rhodes Scholar when he matriculates at Oxford in the fall of 2009.

Marshall Scholarships, founded by an Act of Parliament in 1953, finance opportunities for young American scholars of high ability to study in the United Kingdom. The scholarship commemorates the humane ideals of the European Recovery Program (Marshall Plan) and funds two years of study. At least forty Marshall Scholarships are awarded annually to American students who demonstrate maturity, self-reliance, and self-discipline. Fourteen University of Michigan students have been named Marshall Scholars.

In 1999, the George J. Mitchell Scholarships were established for American university students. This third competitive national scholarship program, supported by the Irish and British governments and other benefactors, honors former Senator George J. Mitchell for his contributions to the Northern Ireland peace process. The prestigious award allows Americans to pursue one year of post-graduate study in Ireland and Northern Ireland. Up to twelve George J. Mitchell Scholarships are awarded annually to students who have shown both academic distinction and the potential for leadership.

We proudly recognize the following students who were endorsed by the University of Michigan this year:

2009 THURNAU PROFESSORS

Thurnau Professorships were established in 1988 by a bequest from Arthur F. Thurnau to recognize and reward faculty for outstanding contributions to undergraduate education. The professorships honor tenured faculty members who, through their commitment and investment in undergraduate teaching, have had a positive impact on the intellectual development and lives of students.

Thurnau Professors receive $20,000 grants to support activities that enhance teaching. It is this important recognition for faculty that Arthur F. Thurnau so generously provided for and that the University of Michigan celebrates.

The University is pleased to recognize this year's Thurnau Professors.

Charles C. Bright

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of History

Professor and Director, Residential College

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Professor Charles Bright's dedication to community engagement has inspired and changed the lives of his students. As a colleague writes, Professor Bright "grasps axiomatically that this world around us has become ever more complexly diverse," and he encourages students to critically engage that world through a variety of unique experiences. Professor Bright has created opportunities for students to take part in several experiential learning projects involving the Detroit community. As part of the new Semester in Detroit program, which he co-founded, students participate in internships with Detroit organizations and work on projects such as developing sustainable urban gardening or creating dramatic productions based on historical research. As a colleague remarks, Professor Bright has "enabled students to broaden their understanding of the world and to develop their capacity to engage it pro-actively." Professor Bright's passion for connecting students to the community has informed his work with the curriculum as well, leading him to create several new undergraduate courses and two new undergraduate minors in the areas of Crime and Justice and Global Transformation. In directing LSA's recent Citizenship Theme year, Professor Bright continued to teach through civic engagement, finding "many ways to enable undergraduates to learn about citizenship and become engaged citizens." In his classes—ranging from global themes such as Empires to local historical topics such as The Central Michigan RR Station and the Community of Southwest Detroit—Professor Bright transforms his students' worldviews. As one student reports of Professor Bright's classes, "each course I took redefined my understanding of the material and ultimately refocused my life goals."

August E. Evrard

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Physics

Professor of Astronomy

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

A caring and innovative teacher, Professor August Evrard has leveraged new technologies to make "the highly mathematical subject of physics alive and exciting," even in large, required courses. In his physics lectures, Professor Evrard was a pioneer in exploring how the Internet and student response systems could be used to promote student engagement and learning. In his term as chair of the LSA Instructional Technology Committee, Professor Evrard guided the introduction of these technologies across the University, and a colleague notes that his role was essential in helping "transform large lecture classes from passive receipt to something more dynamic and actively engaged." His leadership with respect to technology was also key to the creation of the Academic Reporting Toolkit (ART), which allows faculty to learn more about their students' academic backgrounds and preparation. As one colleague states of ART, "ten years from now we'll all look back and marvel at how little we used to know about the student experience, and we will use tools like these on a daily basis in our interaction with students." Professor Evrard brings this same creativity and passion to his mentoring activities, and has been a particularly effective mentor to women, underrepresented minorities, and international students. A former student recalls that, "having the support of a professor who recognized that female students had a unique set of challenges was invaluable." Another student whose work with Professor Evrard led to a major publication says that, "the publication would not have been possible without the encouragement of Professor Evrard as well as his assistance on technical writing, especially since English was my second language."

Andrei S. Markovits

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Political Science

Professor of Sociology

Karl W. Deutsch Collegiate Professor of Comparative Politics and German Studies

Professor of Germanic Languages and Literatures

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Faculty colleagues describe Professor Markovits as a “gifted, brilliant, and dedicated teacher,” with an “astonishing range.” Teaching courses in five departments, he regularly receives outstanding student feedback, and he has been recognized with numerous teaching awards, including the Golden Apple Award in 2007. Professor Markovits engages students in the classroom with captivating and relevant lectures. As one student writes, “after the first lecture, when Professor Markovits introduced Germany and its troubled history, I immediately phoned my dad and said, ‘I just had the most amazing lecture since I have been here at Michigan.’” Not only is Professor Markovits an outstanding classroom teacher, but he also influences student lives as a concerned and rigorous advisor. One student reports that she “would not be a doctoral candidate in history at Stanford University today had it not been for the training and support that Andy Markovits provided.” As senior honors director in political science, he also made significant contributions to the department’s honors program, redesigning the honors seminar from a class that met infrequently to a weekly gathering where students engaged in stimulating discussions of their projects. Students reported that he “was absolutely encouraging when he needed to be, yet challenging as well and made sure that everyone was doing his or her best work.” His ability to inspire excellence is clear from his students’ achievements: three of the students he mentored in the honors program won Fulbright Awards, and a fourth won a Marshall Scholarship.

James P. Walsh

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Gerald and Esther Carey Professor of Business Administration

Professor of Organizational Behavior, Human Resource Management,

Corporate Strategy, and International Business

Stephen M. Ross School of Business

A creative and enthusiastic teacher, Professor Walsh treats students as “contributors in the learning process, not recipients of wisdom packaged by others,” engaging them through interactive lectures, case studies, in-class simulations, and international site visits. His seminar on “The Corporation in Society” reflects Professor Walsh’s commitment to tackling corporate ethical dilemmas. He pushes students to balance business practices and ethics, “getting his students to see the complexity of these seemingly black and white issues.” When a course included discussion of the Ford Pinto, Professor Walsh invited a surprise visitor – the former CEO of Ford Motor Company – who talked to students about the case. As a result, one student learned “that it was much easier for students to pontificate in a classroom than it is for business people to make critical decisions in a complicated world.” To bring to life questions surrounding globalization and corporations in society, Professor Walsh gathered support to take students on a trip to China, visiting sites involved in corporate governance, including government agencies, factories, NGOs, and oversight commissions. As a student recalls of the experience, “learning in the place, from the people, I have a whole new outlook now on consumer behavior, on supply chains, on the impact of one person, and on business in general.” Professor Walsh has also earned a reputation as a generous and talented mentor, meeting students informally, offering lengthy responses to regular opinion papers, and inviting them to be co-authors.

Margaret S. Wooldridge

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Mechanical Engineering

Professor of Aerospace Engineering

College of Engineering

Professor Margaret Wooldridge's dedication to mentoring and outreach make her an exceptional educator within and beyond her department. She is described by one colleague as "a superb instructor in the classroom" who has energized the large undergraduate core courses in Engineering. She also created the course Advanced Energy Solutions and a new college-wide undergraduate concentration on the timely topic of energy. One student notes that when Professor Wooldridge brought real-world concerns about energy design into her classroom, she "inspired me to consider furthering my engineering education past a bachelor's degree, and join the efforts to preserve the world for tomorrow." A colleague admires Professor Wooldridge's ability to act as an "understanding counselor" who motivates her students to achieve their highest potential through "her very close involvement in directing research conducted by undergraduate students, and even publishing papers in journals with them." Professor Wooldridge is also dedicated to promoting diversity in mechanical engineering, through one-on-one mentoring, the creation of an inclusive classroom environment, and the use of distance learning tools. Several students comment on her commitment to diversity, referring to Professor Wooldridge as "an outstanding role model for women in the field of engineering" and "an inspiration to me and many of my fellow women in the engineering community." Professor Wooldridge's influence extends beyond the University of Michigan thanks to her outreach activities. These include hosting the Society of Women Engineers Summer Engineering Exploration Camp for high school students, and visiting each of the sixth grade science courses at Ann Arbor's Tappan Middle School to introduce a design contest that would expose students to engineering.

ACADEMIC DRESS AND CUSTOM

The colorful gowns and hoods worn by faculty members at commencement and other academic ceremonies represent the degrees, disciplines, and alma maters of the wearers. The American academic costume tradition, imported from England, dates to Colonial days.

GOWNS

Bachelor's or master's degree gowns traditionally are black, as are many doctoral gowns in the United States. Some universities prescribe that their graduates wear gowns of another solid color such as blue, crimson, or green. Gowns differ in sleeve cut and trim. For example, the bachelor's gown has long, pointed sleeves while the master's gown has oblong sleeves. Doctoral gowns, with their distinctive bell-shaped sleeves, feature velvet panels down the front and around the neck, as well as crossbars of velvet on the sleeves. Colored trim denotes the field or discipline in which the degree was earned. Usually only a single degree from one institution is indicated by a garment. If more than one degree is held, the gown and hood of the higher or highest degree usually are worn.

HOODS

The hood most precisely describes the wearer's level of degree earned, the major field of learning, and the alma mater. The level of the degree held is indicated by the hood's shape and size and the width of its velvet or velveteen trimming. The bachelor's, master's, and doctor's hoods are 36 inches, 42 inches, and 48 inches long, respectively. The velvet trim is two, three, and five inches wide, with the narrowest being for the bachelor's hood and the widest for the doctor's hood. The color of trim on the hood, as on the gown, identifies the major field of learning in which the degree was awarded. The hood is lined with the official colors of the college or university conferring the degree.

CAPS

Caps vary in style from the traditional black mortarboard to eight-, six-, and four-corner tams, and Elizabethan-style caps. The mortarboard may be of any appropriate material, such as cotton, poplin, rayon, or silk, to match the gown. Velvet is reserved for holders of doctorates.

ACADEMIC COLORS

The colors of the various disciplines are as follows:

Architecture and Urban Planning
blue violet

Business Administration
drab

Dentistry

THE UNIVERSITY MACE

The University's mace, a symbol of authority, is carried at the head of academic processions on such important ceremonial occasions as commencements, convocations, and inaugurations. The mace being used today was given to the University in 1968 by the Senior Board, representing all the undergraduate schools and colleges. Crafted of red oak and trimmed with silver, the mace features the seals of the University and of the State of Michigan. Also engraved on the mace are the names of the University Presidents.

JAMES B. ANGELL SCHOLARS

Students who achieve an all “A” record for two or more consecutive terms are recognized as James B. Angell Scholars. The student must have taken a minimum of 14 credit hours each term, including at least 12 graded credits. Following each scholar’s name is the number of consecutive terms the student has had an all “A” record.
