Honored Students
Honored Faculty
Faculty Colleagues and Friends of the University

It is a pleasure to welcome you to the 88th University of Michigan Honors Convocation. On behalf of the academic leaders on the Ann Arbor, Dearborn, and Flint campuses, I thank you for joining us today.

The Honors Convocation provides us with the opportunity to recognize and celebrate the outstanding academic achievements of undergraduate students from all three of our campuses. It is one of my favorite events each year and has become an important University tradition.

Today we honor students who exemplify academic excellence, committed and creative leadership, and thoughtful service – all core values of the University. These students have demonstrated a passion for learning – challenging themselves and their teachers with tough questions and innovative ideas that stretch the boundaries of knowledge and open new pathways for exploration.

The University's mission statement states our commitment to “developing leaders who will challenge the present and enrich the future.” The students we honor today give life to that commitment through their purposeful engagement with the world.

Today we also honor a group of distinguished faculty members who have joined us for this ceremony. Recently recognized by the University for their outstanding teaching and scholarship, they represent the many individuals in our community who inspire, challenge, and support our students.

As we congratulate our students, we also recognize, with deep appreciation, the parents, family members, and friends who have nurtured and supported these remarkable students. The University of Michigan shares the pride you feel in their accomplishments. With you, we look forward to the contributions they will make to the future.

Congratulations and Welcome!

HONORS CONVOCATION SPEAKERS

Adam A. H. Ferris

Senior, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Adam A. H. Ferris, who came to the University of Michigan from Lisle, Illinois, is a senior with a double major in economics and mathematics in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts. He has engaged in numerous academic and professional activities, including recent work as a research assistant at the Center for Entrepreneurship at the College of Engineering, has earned the designation of Angell Scholar, and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa as a junior. Additionally, he spent the summer of 2009 studying advanced Arabic at the American University of Beirut in Beirut, Lebanon. He has taken on a variety of responsibilities related to the student organization MPowered Entrepreneurship, ranging from designing a business competition to serving as vice president. He has been admitted to and plans to attend the Harvard Business School, after spending a year in Chicago working as a business analyst at Diamond Advisory (a technology strategy and management consultancy).

David S. Potter

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Greek and Latin

Department of Classical Studies, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Professor Potter was named a Thurnau Professor of Greek and Latin in 1996, in recognition of his excellence in and dedication to undergraduate education. He earned his bachelor's degree at Harvard University and his doctorate at Oxford University, then was appointed as an assistant professor at Bryn Mawr College. He joined the faculty of the University of Michigan in 1986, and has served as director of the Lloyd Hall Scholars Program, in addition to his role as a professor. His research fields include Roman imperial history, classical religion and the early church, Greek and Roman historiography, the sociology of public entertainment, and Greek and Latin inscriptions. The author of highly regarded scholarly books, his most recent monographs have focused on life in ancient Rome. His newest book is titled The Victor's Crown: Greek and Roman Sport from Homer to Byzantium (2011), which investigates the western tradition of competitive athletics from the eighth century B.C. to the sixth century A.D. At the University of Michigan, he has taught students in courses that range from specialized graduate seminars to a popular undergraduate survey course titled "Sports and Daily Life in Ancient Rome." Professor Potter was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa at Harvard, and as a faculty member at the University of Michigan has been presented with the Faculty Recognition Award, John H. D'Arms award for graduate supervision in the humanities, and twice was awarded the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts Teaching Award. With his extensive supervision of graduate students and dissertations, he is playing a major role in creating the next generation of scholars in classical studies.

RHODES, MARSHALL, AND MITCHELL SCHOLARSHIPS

Rhodes Scholarships and Marshall Scholarships are among the world's most prestigious academic awards for graduate students. Since the estate of British philanthropist Cecil John Rhodes established Rhodes Scholarships in 1904, twenty-six University of Michigan alumni have studied as Rhodes Scholars at Oxford University. Thirty-two Americans are named Rhodes Scholars each year. International students may apply to or be nominated by 13 other jurisdictions designated by the Rhodes Trust. Students are nominated and appointed based on literary and scholastic attainments; energy to use talents to the fullest; truth, courage, devotion to duty, unselfishness, and sympathy for and protection of the weak; and moral force of character, interest in one's fellow human beings, and the instinct to lead.

Marshall Scholarships, founded by an Act of Parliament in 1953, finance opportunities for young American scholars of high ability to study in the United Kingdom. The scholarship commemorates the humane ideals of the European Recovery Program (Marshall Plan) and funds one or two years of study. At least forty Marshall Scholarships are awarded annually to American students who demonstrate maturity, self-reliance, and self-discipline. Fourteen University of Michigan students have been named Marshall Scholars.

In 1999, the George J. Mitchell Scholarships were established for American university students. This third competitive national scholarship program, supported by the Irish and British governments and other benefactors, honors former Senator George J. Mitchell for his contributions to the Northern Ireland peace process. The prestigious award allows Americans to pursue one year of post-graduate study in Ireland and Northern Ireland. Up to twelve George J. Mitchell Scholarships are awarded annually to students who have shown both academic distinction and the potential for leadership.

We proudly recognize the following students who were endorsed by the University of Michigan this year:

Samuel Burns College of Literature, Science, and the Arts	MARSHALL NOMINEE
Dara Fisher College of Engineering	MARSHALL NOMINEE
Kelly Goodman College of Literature, Science, and the Arts	RHODES FINALIST, MARSHALL RESERVE
James Manganello College of Literature, Science, and the Arts	MARSHALL FINALIST
Paula Muldoon School of Music, Theatre & Dance	MARSHALL NOMINEE
Ian Tobasco College of Engineering	MARSHALL NOMINEE

Like the Rhodes, Marshall, and Mitchell Scholarships, the Churchill Scholarship is one of the most prestigious and academically competitive opportunities of its kind. The scholarship, named for Sir Winston Churchill, funds a year of graduate study in mathematics, biological and physical sciences, and engineering at the University of Cambridge. Fourteen scholarships are awarded each year to applicants from more than one hundred American colleges and universities. David Montague, a senior in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, has been awarded the Churchill Scholarship this year, becoming the 11th Churchill Scholar named from the University of Michigan since the program began in 1959.

2011 THURNAU PROFESSORS

The Thurnau Professorships were established in 1988 to recognize and reward faculty for outstanding contributions to undergraduate education. The professorships honor tenured faculty members who, through their commitment and investment in undergraduate teaching, have had a positive impact on the intellectual development and lives of students.

Arthur F. Thurnau, for whom the Thurnau Professorship is named, attended the University of Michigan from fall of 1902 until spring of 1904. He studied a liberal arts curriculum, but he did not graduate. This was not uncommon for the time, and although his three brothers also attended the University of Michigan, only one of them graduated. In his two years here, Arthur completed 58 credits of French, German, History, English, Rhetoric, Politics, and Economics. He also was a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity and sang in the Freshmen Glee Club.

Arthur later returned to Chicago, and worked as an “ad man,” selling advertising space in various magazines and newspapers. In this role, he eventually rose to the position of vice president and western manager for the firm Paul Block, Inc. He was actively involved in U-M alumni events in Chicago, even trying to arrange a football game between the Wolverines and the University of Chicago Maroons during that period of time when Chicago was part of the Big 10 Conference and Michigan was not. He also put his organizational talents to work during World War II by creating events to encourage the sale of government bonds.

Arthur Thurnau’s generosity to the University of Michigan began in 1966, and continued through the rest of his life. Upon his death in 1979, his estate created the Thurnau Charitable Trust to support the University of Michigan. Since 1988, these funds have been used to support the Thurnau Professorships. Thurnau Professors receive $20,000 grants to support activities that enhance teaching. It is this important recognition for faculty that Arthur F. Thurnau so generously provided for and that the University of Michigan celebrates.

The University is pleased to recognize this year’s Thurnau Professors.

Amy Cohn

*Arthur F. Thurnau Professor
Associate Professor of Industrial and Operations Engineering
Director of Academic Programs
College of Engineering*

Professor Cohn has a firm commitment to undergraduate teaching and the use of innovative learning strategies. Her skills as an educator have been recognized by her colleagues, who champion her “fresh ideas,” “valuable insights,” and “dedication.” From the start of her time here at U-M, Professor Cohn has worked tirelessly to creatively engage students in and outside of her classroom. For example, in her “Introduction to Optimization Methods” course she implemented a new model for office hours in which students work in groups to help each other solve problems. Professor Cohn also collaborated with her team of GSIs to design and disseminate an online system that provides self-teaching materials to struggling students. One student said that Professor Cohn is “a facilitator for our own learning who allows her students to understand and learn from our mistakes.” Another student underscored Professor Cohn’s “extraordinary capability to stimulate student minds by adding personality and humor to the course material.” Outside of the classroom, she is proactive in providing real-world opportunities for undergraduates to gain practical experience through research projects, some of which have resulted in student publications. Professor Cohn has also made a significant impact on undergraduate education as a member of the Commission on Undergraduate Engineering Education and in her role as faculty advisor for the Society of Women Engineers, the student chapter of the Institute for Industrial Engineers, and the Engineering Global Leadership Honors Program. The insight, innovation, and enthusiasm Professor Cohn brings to teaching and mentorship make her a representative of “the prestige, honor, and academic excellence associated with a Michigan education.”

Stephen DeBacker

*Arthur F. Thurnau Professor
Professor of Mathematics
College of Literature, Science, and the Arts*

Professor DeBacker has been a major force for curricular development and is “legendary in his achievements as an advisor and counselor to undergraduates.” As course coordinator for “Math 215” (introductory multivariable calculus), Professor DeBacker redesigned the labs, exams, and homework to better meet the diverse needs of the 1,400 students who come from a wide range of departments and are required to take this course. Colleagues attribute the dramatic increase in the number of majors and minors in mathematics over the past six years in large part to Professor DeBacker’s work in revamping first- and second-year undergraduate courses and his efforts to retain undergraduates who demonstrate enthusiasm in entry-level math courses. He has played a central role in the department’s advising system, encouraging faculty to distribute end-of-term emails about upcoming courses and sending letters to parents discussing the career opportunities offered in mathematics. In addition, Professor DeBacker works tirelessly to foster a strong sense of community among students. He coordinates the Undergraduate Math Club, inviting students to informal events and actively soliciting their suggestions for course improvement. In addition to his efforts with the curriculum and advising, Professor DeBacker has a reputation as an outstanding teacher who makes a lasting impact on students in his classes. In a letter of support, one student noted that Professor DeBacker “inspired deep mathematical contemplation” despite his “reputation for giving especially difficult homework.” Professor DeBacker’s dedication to providing students with a “solid educational experience” has been underscored by colleagues, one of whom wrote that his “clear communication style, calm demeanor, and tradition to always tell a joke in the middle of a lecture, make his basic calculus courses a real success.”

Mika LaVaque-Manty

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Associate Professor of Political Science

Associate Professor of Philosophy

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

In her State of the University address in October, President Coleman highlighted Professor LaVaque-Manty's exceptional teaching by describing his "Introduction to Political Theory" class as a model of the kind of "transformative classroom experience" offered by U-M. The president's recognition of Professor LaVaque-Manty's class is testament to the effectiveness of his cutting-edge pedagogy and technological innovation. Professor LaVaque-Manty is "a tech geek" who "loves to teach." In his classroom, he uses live broadcasts, podcasts, and the online teaching system – LectureTools – to actively engage students and to create the feeling of a small classroom in a large lecture hall. Professor LaVaque-Manty is a caring teacher who connects with his students in person as well as through technology. "Students praise his availability, his interest in teaching, and his timely and copious commentary on students' papers." In addition to his innovative methods for engaging students, he plays a central role in promoting teaching innovation in political science and at the University more broadly. His department has called upon him many times to spearhead efforts to enhance important components of their undergraduate experience. For example, he led efforts to rethink the Political Science Honors Program to make it available to more students and to improve their educational experience. He is also regularly involved in college-wide initiatives on teaching, and he generously mentors colleagues on the use of instructional technology. His commitment to teaching and the educational mission of the University have been recognized with numerous awards, and he has been singled out by his colleagues for his ability to "elevate engagement and critical thinking to new heights."

Barry Rabe

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Public Policy

Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy

Professor of Environmental Policy

School of Natural Resources and Environment

As one colleague wrote, Professor Rabe "is a role model for how a professional school faculty member can contribute to undergraduate education." Professor Rabe is the creator of the Program in the Environment (PitE). Since it was launched in 2002, PitE has become the fastest growing undergraduate unit in LSA, attracting more than 400 students, and it has greatly expanded the size, scope, and relevance of the environmental offerings at U-M. Professor Rabe's work with PitE has had university-wide impact. He has actively recruited practitioners to teach original classes and advised other professional schools and academic units (School of Public Health, SNRE, LSA, and the Ford School of Public Policy) in creating new undergraduate course offerings and programs. Professor Rabe is not only a role model for other departments and units, he is also a visionary teacher in his own classroom. Professor Rabe has continuously chosen to teach a broad range of undergraduate classes. A student described his classroom as "a dynamic synthesis of relevant historical content and contemporary case studies." The effectiveness of Professor Rabe's strategies for narrowing the gap between theory and practice are especially relevant when it comes to assignments and activities, which are designed to simulate real-world challenges, such as having students prepare policy memos and publicly defend their positions in class. Students report that these experiences help to shape their understanding of the "reality of the policy world" and prepare them for their professional lives.

Melanie S. Sanford

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Chemistry

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

A recipient of a number of teaching awards, Professor Sanford is noted for her dedication and skill in helping students learn the rigors of scientific research and experimentation in the classroom and the lab. For example, she single-handedly initiated efforts to revamp the advanced organic chemistry undergraduate lab based on the fact that changes in research had far outpaced the rate of change of undergraduate lab manuals. She introduced new topics, such as metal catalysts, and reinvigorated the lab to reflect a more authentic research experience. Her innovative approaches to research and novel pedagogies have had an impressive influence on both her students and fellow faculty. After taking Professor Sanford's "Chemistry 215" honors class, one student wrote, "Professor Sanford's lecture kindled one of these rare moments of clarity (especially for an undergraduate student) in which I began to realize the impact that these classroom concepts of organic chemistry had on the real world." This desire to help students make real-world connections has been contagious, and many of Professor Sanford's colleagues now look to her for inspiration and guidance on teaching and learning. Her colleagues have also identified Professor Sanford as an "exceptional research mentor for students from traditionally underrepresented areas in science," due to her work with the Research Experiences for Undergraduates and the Women in Science and Engineering programs. Not only is Professor Sanford devoted to teaching at the university level, she is also an active promoter of community outreach. She has worked to expand the "Science Saturday" model, a highly successful program designed to introduce precollege students to science topics, so that it includes chemistry, as well as physics. As one of her colleagues wrote, Professor Sanford "epitomizes the academic ideal of a person whose understanding and success in discovery research is accompanied by exceptional classroom pedagogy and concern for education."

Colleen Seifert

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Psychology

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Faculty Associate, Research Center for Group Dynamics

Institute for Social Research

Professor Seifert has been lauded as "one of those rare individuals who really can do it all." She has an impressive scholarly record that is complemented by her outstanding achievements in teaching. Her commitment to undergraduate education is evident in the fact that she has, for several years, been the only tenured faculty member teaching "Psychology 111," one of LSA's most popular gateway courses, which draws approximately 1200–1500 students each semester. As the director of the undergraduate honors research program, she initiated a five-year redesign effort using a two-pronged approach: contextualized student scholarship and personalized connections between students and faculty. She persisted in encouraging her faculty colleagues to identify a diverse group of promising honors students, with the goal of doubling (from 30 to 60) the number of senior undergraduates in the program. During the last year that Professor Seifert was the program's director, 80 theses were completed. Currently, Professor Seifert is embarking on a new mission as chair of the Psychology Student Academic Affairs office. In this role, Professor Seifert is in the process of undertaking a curricular review with the undergraduate committee of the 200 level 'gateway' course and laboratory course for the undergraduate program. When asked by a colleague what satisfaction she gained from teaching, Professor Seifert responded: "I just live for the occasion when they say, 'You know, I just never thought about it that way.'"

ACADEMIC DRESS AND CUSTOM

The colorful gowns and hoods worn by faculty members at commencement and other academic ceremonies represent the degrees, disciplines, and alma maters of the wearers. The American academic costume tradition, imported from England, dates to Colonial days.

GOWNS

Bachelor's or master's degree gowns traditionally are black, as are many doctoral gowns in the United States. Some universities prescribe that their graduates wear gowns of another solid color such as blue, crimson, or green. Gowns differ in sleeve cut and trim. For example, the bachelor's gown has long, pointed sleeves while the master's gown has oblong sleeves. Doctoral gowns, with their distinctive bell-shaped sleeves, feature velvet panels down the front and around the neck, as well as crossbars of velvet on the sleeves. Colored trim denotes the field or discipline in which the degree was earned. Usually only a single degree from one institution is indicated by a garment. If more than one degree is held, the gown and hood of the higher or highest degree usually are worn.

HOODS

The hood most precisely describes the wearer's level of degree earned, the major field of learning, and the alma mater. The level of the degree held is indicated by the hood's shape and size and the width of its velvet or velveteen trimming. The bachelor's, master's, and doctor's hoods are 36 inches, 42 inches, and 48 inches long, respectively. The velvet trim is two, three, and five inches wide, with the narrowest being for the bachelor's hood and the widest for the doctor's hood. The color of trim on the hood, as on the gown, identifies the major field of learning in which the degree was awarded. The hood is lined with the official colors of the college or university conferring the degree.

CAPS

Caps vary in style from the traditional black mortarboard to eight-, six-, and four-corner tams, and Elizabethan-style caps. The mortarboard may be of any appropriate material, such as cotton, poplin, rayon, or silk, to match the gown. Velvet is reserved for holders of doctorates.

THE UNIVERSITY MACE

The University's mace, a symbol of authority, is carried at the head of academic processions on such important ceremonial occasions as commencements, convocations, and inaugurations. The mace being used today was given to the University in 1968 by the Senior Board, representing all the undergraduate schools and colleges. Crafted of red oak and trimmed with silver, the mace features the seals of the University and of the State of Michigan. Also engraved on the mace are the names of the University Presidents.
