

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

91ST ANNUAL
HONORS
CONVOCATION

Hill Auditorium

March 16, 2014 | 2:00 p.m.

This year marks the 91st Honors Convocation held at the University of Michigan since the first was instituted on May 13, 1924, by President Marion LeRoy Burton. On these occasions the University publicly recognizes and commends the undergraduate students in its schools and colleges who have earned distinguished academic records or have excelled as leaders in the community. It is highly appropriate that those students be honored who have most clearly and effectively demonstrated academic excellence, dynamic leadership, and inspirational volunteerism. Honors Convocation takes rank with the commencement exercises among the important ceremonies of the University year.

The names of the students who are honored for outstanding achievement this year appear in this program. They include all students who have earned University Honors in both Winter 2013 and Fall 2013, plus all seniors who have earned University Honors in either Winter 2013 or Fall 2013. The William J. Branstrom Freshman Prize recipients are listed, as well—recognizing first year undergraduate students whose academic achievement during their first semester on campus place them in the upper five percent of their school or college class. James B. Angell Scholars—students who receive all “A” grades over consecutive terms—are given a special place in the program. In addition, the student speaker is recognized individually for exemplary contributions to the University community.

To all honored students, and to their parents, the University extends its hearty congratulations.

Honored Students

Honored Faculty

Faculty Colleagues and Friends of the University

It is a pleasure to welcome you to the 91st University of Michigan Honors Convocation. On behalf of the academic leaders of the Ann Arbor, Dearborn, and Flint campuses, I thank you for joining us today.

Honors Convocation provides us with an opportunity to recognize and celebrate the outstanding academic achievements of undergraduate students from all three of our campuses. It is an important University tradition; we are glad to have this time to reflect on the accomplishments of our students.

Today we honor students who exemplify academic excellence, committed and creative leadership, and thoughtful service—all core values of the University. These students have demonstrated passion for learning, challenging themselves and their teachers with tough questions and innovative ideas that stretch the boundaries of knowledge and open new pathways for exploration.

The University's mission states our commitment to "developing leaders who will challenge the present and enrich the future." The students we honor today give life to that commitment through their purposeful engagement with the world.

Today we also honor a group of distinguished faculty members who have joined us for this ceremony. Recently recognized by the University for their outstanding teaching and scholarship, they represent the many individuals in our community who inspire, challenge, and support our students.

As we congratulate our students, we also recognize, with deep appreciation, the parents, family members, and friends who have nurtured and supported these remarkable students. The University of Michigan shares the pride you feel in their accomplishments. With you, we look forward to the contributions they will make to the future.

Congratulations and welcome!

HONORS CONVOCATION SPEAKERS

Anitha Menon

Junior, College of Engineering

Anitha Menon, a junior from Grand Rapids, Michigan, is majoring in biomedical engineering in the College of Engineering.

A four term James B. Angell Scholar and recipient of the William J. Branstrom Freshman Prize, she has conducted research on artificial lungs at the Medical School and currently is at the Life Sciences Institute investigating pathways in graft-versus-host disease, which occurs when transplanted donor cells attack the recipient's body. Last summer she led the student-run Better Living Using Engineering Laboratory Biogas (BLUELab) Team that traveled to Liberia, West Africa, where the group designed and built an anaerobic biogas digester to convert waste and manure into fuel and fertilizer. She is a violinist and external publicity director with the University of Michigan Pops Orchestra, vice president of the College of Engineering Class of 1931E Honor Society, and an Honors Program study group leader for organic chemistry. Following graduation, she plans to attend medical school, preparing for a career in global health.

Martha S. Jones

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Associate Professor of History

Associate Professor of Afroamerican and African Studies

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Professor Jones, a member of the University of Michigan faculty since 2001, was named a Thurnau Professor in 2013 in recognition of her outstanding teaching and mentoring. She earned a bachelor's degree from Hunter College, a juris doctor from the City University of New York School of Law, and a doctorate from Columbia University. Professor Jones, whose broad scholarly interests span the history of race, citizenship, slavery, and the rights of women, encourages students to delve into history through primary sources and community involvement. In her first book, All Bound Up Together: The Woman Question in African American Public Culture, 1830–1900 (2007), Professor Jones explores black women's many contributions to social movements. She is currently completing a new book, Birthright Citizenship: Race and Rights in Antebellum America, while serving as the William C. and Ida Friday Fellow at the National Humanities Center and a fellow of the American Council of Learned Societies. Her engaging public exhibits, including "Proclaiming Emancipation" at the Harlan Hatcher Graduate Library in 2012–2013, invite students and others to explore the richness of the past. Professor Jones, who teaches at the Law School, codirects the Michigan Law Program in Race, Law & History. She also is an Undergraduate Research Opportunity Program mentor, Organization of American Historians distinguished lecturer, and a winner of U-M's Harold R. Johnson Diversity Service Award. Through her teaching and interdisciplinary research, Professor Jones inspires students and the public to think critically about race, gender, and citizenship in the United States and globally.

RHODES, MARSHALL, MITCHELL, AND CHURCHILL SCHOLARSHIPS

Rhodes, Marshall, Mitchell, and Churchill Scholarships are among the world's most prestigious academic awards for graduate students. Since the estate of British philanthropist Cecil John Rhodes established Rhodes Scholarships in 1904, 26 University of Michigan alumni have studied as Rhodes Scholars at Oxford University. Thirty-two Americans are named Rhodes Scholars each year. International students may apply to or be nominated by 13 other jurisdictions designated by the Rhodes Trust.

Marshall Scholarships, founded by an Act of Parliament in 1953, finance opportunities for young American scholars of high ability to study in the United Kingdom. The scholarship commemorates the humane ideals of the European Recovery Program (Marshall Plan) and funds one or two years of study. Approximately 40 Marshall Scholarships are awarded annually to American students who demonstrate maturity, self-reliance, and self-discipline.

The Churchill Scholarship provides high-achieving U.S. citizens with funding for a single year of graduate work in math, science, or engineering at Churchill College, Cambridge. Only about 14 scholarships are awarded annually.

In 1999, the George J. Mitchell Scholarships were established for American university students. This third competitive national scholarship program, supported by the Irish and British governments and other benefactors, honors former Senator George J. Mitchell for his contributions to the Northern Ireland peace process. The prestigious award allows Americans to pursue one year of post-graduate study in Ireland and Northern Ireland. Up to 12 George J. Mitchell Scholarships are awarded annually to students who have shown both academic distinction and the potential for leadership.

We proudly recognize the following students who were endorsed by the University of Michigan this year:

2014 THURNAU PROFESSORS

The Thurnau Professorships were established in 1988 to recognize and reward faculty for outstanding contributions to undergraduate education. The professorships honor tenured faculty members who, through their commitment and investment in undergraduate teaching, have had a positive impact on the intellectual development and lives of students.

Arthur F. Thurnau, for whom the Thurnau Professorship is named, attended the University of Michigan from fall of 1902 until spring of 1904. He studied a liberal arts curriculum, but he did not graduate. This was not uncommon for the time, and although his three brothers also attended the University of Michigan, only one of them graduated. In his two years here, Arthur completed 58 credits of French, German, history, English, rhetoric, politics, and economics. He also was a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity and sang in the Freshmen Glee Club.

Arthur later returned to Chicago, and worked as an “ad man,” selling advertising space in various magazines and newspapers. In this role, he eventually rose to the position of vice president and western manager for the firm Paul Block, Inc. He was actively involved in U-M alumni events in Chicago, even trying to arrange a football game between the Wolverines and the University of Chicago Maroons during that period of time when Chicago was part of the Big Ten Conference and Michigan was not. He also put his organizational talents to work during World War II by creating events to encourage the sale of government bonds.

Arthur Thurnau’s generosity to the University of Michigan began in 1966, and continued through the rest of his life. Upon his death in 1979, his estate created the Thurnau Charitable Trust to support the University of Michigan. Since 1988, these funds have been used to support the Thurnau Professorships. Thurnau Professors receive $20,000 grants to support activities that enhance teaching. It is this important recognition for faculty that Arthur F. Thurnau so generously provided for and that the University of Michigan celebrates. The University is pleased to recognize this year’s Thurnau Professors.

Melissa M. Gross

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor
Associate Professor of Movement Science
School of Kinesiology
Associate Professor of Art and Design
Penny W. Stamps School of Art and Design

An admiring colleague suggests that Professor Gross' teaching "should be the model for the modern research university." Professor Gross strives to create interdisciplinary learning opportunities and facilitates highly innovative uses of technology. In order to make her students "see" anatomy outside the class, she sought out and collaborated with the University of Michigan Museum of Art to create a special exhibit of anatomy related artworks. Students in her courses visually capture and analyze the biomechanical aspects of movement using technology and media resources, developing their creative and analytical skills in the process. A senior colleague notes how she expertly "blends the visual with the analytical and favors hands-on independent analysis of the problem over standard methods." Students praise her remarkable ability to recognize their passions, and her genuine excitement for the material keeps students curious and engaged. A former student says, "Because of Dr. Gross, I became fascinated by the complexity and intricacy of the human body, a main reason why I chose to pursue medicine." Deeply invested in students' professional development, she trains undergraduate assistants to teach the human musculoskeletal labs with graduate student instructors every semester. Through her administrative work, Professor Gross' impact is further magnified. As the School of Kinesiology's director of innovative teaching and learning, she assists colleagues with the integration of best practices and instructional technology, highlights their teaching achievements, and seeks ways to use the power of learning analytics to enhance instruction. As chair of Movement Science, she is spearheading reform of the curriculum and implementing a unique new program in Intraoperative Neurophysiological Monitoring. A colleague calls her a "quintessential scholar-educator" and notes the "unparalleled educational and learning environment" she provides for her students and colleagues.

Alejandro Herrero-Olaizola

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor
Associate Professor of Spanish
College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Innovative, interdisciplinary, warm, encouraging, committed, leadership—these are just some of the words used to describe Professor Herrero-Olaizola. Colleagues admire his ability to meld inspiring teaching, warm and welcoming advising, and transformational leadership. An award winning teacher, Professor Herrero-Olaizola powerfully integrates his research into the classroom in order to promote critical interdisciplinary reflection. As a colleague writes, through Professor Herrero-Olaizola's deft incorporation of primary source materials "he recreates for students the experience of search and discovery, while also enabling them to see how literary production takes place within a field of competing interests—economic, political, and artistic." Widely known for both his approachability and his mastery of study abroad intricacies, students and colleagues seek his assistance in navigating international learning opportunities and helping them identify the most appropriate student experiences. As a student writes, "He is always encouraging students to step outside of their comfort zone and embrace cultural immersion in new environments." In addition to his own courses, Professor Herrero-Olaizola is a leader of the department's curricular initiatives. He was the first to develop and teach a large lecture course in the Spanish department. His vision and effort helped diversify the curriculum, leading to more courses offered in English, a new minor in Portuguese, and the development of a course for heritage speakers of Spanish. He has also worked to make the concentration more accessible to students, creating a rubric that enables students to navigate the multiple paths to a major or minor in Spanish. Says a senior colleague, Professor Herrero-Olaizola will "continue to make significant positive contributions to our program and to the lives of our undergraduate students since his work ethic, his administrative efficiency, his dedication to teaching, and to promoting dialogue in the department are absolutely exemplary."

Anne J. McNeil

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Associate Professor of Chemistry

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Associate Professor of Macromolecular Science and Engineering

College of Engineering

Described by her nominator as a “creative and outstanding leader in research and education,” Professor McNeil has been recognized with both local and national teaching awards. Perfectly paced lectures, methodical notes and explanations, real world examples, and the integration of research capture students’ interest, most notably in high enrollment, challenging courses such as Chemistry 210. Early in her teaching career, she developed a Wikipedia project, challenging her students to enhance the scientific content on Wikipedia. This powerful student learning initiative, highlighted in Science, built collaboration skills and simultaneously provided free, high quality scientific knowledge to the public. She also creates valuable online resources to supplement classroom instruction, foster student competencies, and address discrepancies in educational backgrounds. A champion of instructional technology, she regularly shares her expertise with colleagues through departmental and campus teaching forums. By involving graduate and undergraduate students in the development of curricular innovations she is training the next generation of educators. This commitment to the future also shapes her efforts to engage underrepresented students with science, as evidenced by her participation in pipeline programs, such as Washtenaw Community College’s summer STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) camp and the IDEA (Instructional Development and Educational Assessment) institute summer camp, as well as her careful mentoring of a diverse group of undergraduate research assistants. One student remarks how “she always walked into the lab at least once a day to talk to us and discuss our progress, as well as work through any problems we may have encountered in the experiments.” Professor McNeil “teaches people how to think about chemistry and how to appreciate this fascinating subject” says a senior colleague who greatly admires the “sincere interest, enthusiasm, and creativity that Anne has for advancing education at the University of Michigan.”

Jamie D. Phillips

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science

College of Engineering

Professor Phillips has shown “systematic dedication to improving instruction for both the undergraduates he teaches and the graduate student instructors he mentors.” His impact is felt across the entire electrical engineering and computer science undergraduate curriculum. He has transformed typical engineering courses into ones that excite and engage undergraduates by exposing them to real-world challenges. He creatively transformed a section of Engineering 100 into a team-based design project that challenges students to create new products based on solar technology. To teach juniors the abstract concepts related to semiconductor devices, Professor Phillips asks them to role-play electron movement. As one student wrote, “Rather than simply asking us to raise our hands and answer questions, Professor Phillips has us up and out of our seats, literally engaging with the material being taught.” Along with these classroom innovations, Professor Phillips conducts research on ways to enhance the student experience and uses learning analytics to identify successful traits of electrical engineering students in order to develop an effective advising tool. His careful work in the classroom extends to his pedagogical mentoring of his graduate student instructors. As one colleague who observed him wrote, “This mutual respect and obvious mentoring affected me very deeply, and as a result of his example, I have modified my approach towards the graduate student instructors with whom I interact.” A senior colleague provides the best summary: “Professor Jamie Phillips is an exemplar-teaching professor. He cares about his courses, constantly innovating to improve and update them. He cares about his students, taking the time to mentor them. He cares about the scholarship of teaching, rigorously studying the effects of his efforts on student learning.”

Megan L. Sweeney

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Associate Professor of English Language and Literature

Associate Professor of Afroamerican and African Studies

Associate Professor of Women's Studies

College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Combining enormous care and creativity in her own teaching with remarkable service to the undergraduate teaching missions of two departments, Professor Sweeney's influence has been immense. A colleague notes that "Professor Sweeney believes intensely and firmly in the potential of every single undergraduate here, and she strives to instill her confidence in them." Her courses address difficult issues of race, gender, identity and justice, and she encourages students to gain a more thoughtful understanding of different people and their perspectives. One student praises her ability to create learning communities where participants "understand, respect and learn from one another despite their differences." Her dedication to the learning experience of her individual students is matched only by her commitment to their cumulative learning experiences. Colleagues note that "Professor Sweeney has been absolutely essential to the development of rigorous innovative pedagogy in the Department of Afroamerican and African Studies (DAAS), English, and beyond" and that it is difficult to imagine a "deeper and more abiding commitment to undergraduate education." In DAAS, she led an overhaul of the curriculum, rejuvenated the Honors Program, and played a pivotal role in launching a community engaged-learning initiative. In English, Professor Sweeney directs the Undergraduate Writing Program, mentoring and training departmental graduate student instructors. Through her good counsel and the valuable teaching aids she creates, she supports the development and delivery of high quality instruction to the undergraduates enrolled in the program's many courses. As two of her senior colleagues note, Professor Sweeney "contributes to the pedagogical mission of the institution with unprecedented energy and vision."

Michael D. Thouless

Arthur F. Thurnau Professor

Professor of Mechanical Engineering

Professor of Materials Science and Engineering

College of Engineering

Professor Thouless' innovative teaching, strong commitment to advising and mentoring, and administrative leadership have created an educational legacy which has transformed the undergraduate experience in Mechanical Engineering. Recognized with numerous teaching awards, Professor Thouless is known as a creative classroom teacher and curricular innovator who creates valuable learning experiences for students. He was the driving force behind the design of two unique required courses. In one, he fused material from two courses—one in Mechanical Engineering and one in Materials Science and Engineering—into one, enabling students to see, in the words of a colleague, "the fundamental connection between these previously distinct topics and their application to mechanical design." In the other, he created opportunities for students to encounter real-world issues of error and uncertainty in engineering. As one student wrote, "Learning to make engineering judgments based on limited data and non-technical requests was extraordinarily difficult, and I remember Professor Thouless saying that if we learned anything, it should be this." Beyond these course-level innovations, his leadership of the undergraduate program created many other lasting changes, including the establishment of dual degree programs, the development of peer and web-based advising systems, and the initiation of an early intervention and mentoring policy for students in academic distress. Equally important, Professor Thouless has a strong commitment to diversity in the sciences, working at both the institutional and individual levels to support underrepresented students. As his nominator writes, "there are very few professors who have been as broadly and deeply involved with undergraduate students as Professor Thouless, as an instructor, mentor, and a leader in education."

ACADEMIC DRESS AND CUSTOM

The colorful gowns and hoods worn by faculty members at commencement and other academic ceremonies represent the degrees, disciplines, and alma maters of the wearers. The American academic costume tradition, imported from England, dates to Colonial days.

Gowns

Bachelor's or master's degree gowns traditionally are black, as are many doctoral gowns in the United States. Some universities prescribe that their graduates wear gowns of another solid color such as blue, crimson, or green. Gowns differ in sleeve cut and trim. For example, the bachelor's gown has long, pointed sleeves while the master's gown has oblong sleeves. Doctoral gowns, with their distinctive bell-shaped sleeves, feature velvet panels down the front and around the neck, as well as crossbars of velvet on the sleeves. Colored trim denotes the field or discipline in which the degree was earned. Usually only a single degree from one institution is indicated by a garment. If more than one degree is held, the gown and hood of the higher or highest degree usually are worn.

Hoods

The hood most precisely describes the wearer's level of degree earned, the major field of learning, and the alma mater. The level of the degree held is indicated by the hood's shape and size and the width of its velvet or velveteen trimming. The bachelor's, master's, and doctor's hoods are 36 inches, 42 inches, and 48 inches long, respectively. The velvet trim is two, three, and five inches wide, with the narrowest being for the bachelor's hood and the widest for the doctor's hood. The color of trim on the hood, as on the gown, identifies the major field of learning in which the degree was awarded. The hood is lined with the official colors of the college or university conferring the degree.

Caps

Caps vary in style from the traditional black mortarboard to eight-, six-, and four-corner tams, and Elizabethan-style caps. The mortarboard may be of any appropriate material, such as cotton, poplin, rayon, or silk, to match the gown. Velvet is reserved for holders of doctorates.

THE UNIVERSITY MACE

The University's mace, a symbol of authority, is carried at the head of academic processions on such important ceremonial occasions as commencements, convocations, and inaugurations. The mace being used today was given to the University in 1968 by the Senior Board, representing all the undergraduate schools and colleges. Crafted of red oak and trimmed with silver, the mace features the seals of the University and of the State of Michigan. Also engraved on the mace are the names of the University Presidents.

STATEMENT ON FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND ARTISTIC EXPRESSION

Thank you for attending this program. The University of Michigan strives to create a truly open forum, one in which diverse opinions can be expressed and heard.

It is the right of members of the University community, speakers, artists, and other invited guests to express their views and opinions at the University. We will protect the right of individuals to speak or perform, and the rights of those members of the University community who wish to hear and communicate with an invited speaker or artist.

Protesters also have a right to express their opposition to a speaker in appropriate ways, both within the confines of this building and outside the facility. However, protesters must not interfere unduly with communication between a speaker or artist and members of the audience.

If the hosts of this event or University representatives believe that protesters are interfering unduly with a speaker or performer's freedom of expression, those protesters will be warned. If the warnings are not heeded and the interference continues, then the individuals responsible may be removed from the building.

THE YELLOW AND BLUE

Sing to the colors that float in the light;
Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue!

Yellow the stars as they ride thro' the night,
And reel in a rollicking crew;

Yellow the fields where ripens the grain,
And Yellow the moon on the harvest wain;

Hail!

Hail to the colors that float in the light;
Hurrah for the Yellow and Blue!
